This educational package includes a two-page worksheet and an answer key designed specifically for the 21-minute video "Story of Stuff." The bundle is part of my media literacy unit in English and is intended to help students think critically about the content. Last updated on April 15, 2024. The resource is a comprehensive guide that challenges students to consider different perspectives and evaluate character choices throughout the movie. It prompts them to write persuasive paragraphs about suitable titles for the film and research immigration laws affecting people in similar situations. The teacher's note explains that this resource is available in English only, with subtitles making it accessible to students who may not understand Spanish. The package includes a student movie guide (PDF), an answer key, a Google Slides version of the guide, and a generic, editable permission slip. It also provides CCSS alignment indicating which standards are met, along with preview images for samples. If you've acquired this resource, you can share your thoughts about it here.
